Seminar

Report:

On 17th Octomber 2023, Department of Pali & Prakrit organized Seminar was conducted on the topic "Pali Bhasha Parichya: Pali Bhasha Parichya, which translates to "Introduction to the Pali Language," is a foundational study that plays a pivotal role in understanding the teachings of Buddhism. The seminar aims to provide an overview of the significance, content, and objectives of Pali Bhasha Parichya seminars, making it a valuable resource for scholars, practitioners, and those interested in delving into the world of Pali literature. The seminar on Pali Bhasha Parichya serves as an entry point to the study of the Pali language and the vast body of Buddhist literature composed in Pali. It is an essential step for those who seek a deep understanding of Buddhism and its original teachings. By equipping participants with linguistic skills and offering a gateway to explore the spiritual and intellectual heritage of Buddhism through its authentic texts, Pali Bhasha Parichya seminars contribute significantly to the dissemination and preservation of this invaluable knowledge.

Following the presentation, a question-and-answer session was held, where participants engaged in discussions and inquiries about the Pali language and its role in the context of Buddhist studies. This interactive session allowed for a deeper exploration of the topic and addressed specific interests of the audience.

The total duration of the excursion was 01 day and the place visited was LONAR LAKE.

History of Lonar Lake:

Lonar Lake, also known as Lonar crater, is a notified National Geo-heritage Monument, saline, soda lake, located at Lonar in Buldhana district, Maharashtra, India. Lonar Lake is an astrobleme created by a meteorite impact during the Pleistocene Epoch. It is one of only four known hyper-velocity impact craters in basaltic rock anywhere on Earth. Lonar Lake has a mean diameter of 1.2 kilometres (3,900 ft) and is about 137 metres (449 ft) below the crater rim. The meteor crater rim is about 1.8 kilometres (5,900 ft) in diameter. Lonar Crater sits inside the Deccan Plateau – a massive plain of volcanic basalt rock created by eruptions some 65 million years ago. Its location in this basalt field suggested to some geologists that it was a volcanic crater. Today, however, Lonar Crater is understood to be the result of a meteorite impact. The water in the lake is both saline and alkaline. The crater has an oval shape. The meteorite impact came from the east, at an angle of 35 to 40 degrees. Earlier thermo luminescence analyses gave a result of 52,000 years, while recent argon-argon dating suggests that the crater is much older; it could be 570 000 years old. This is an only lake with saline water throughout the Asian continent, which is attracting the tourist day by day.

Geographical Features:

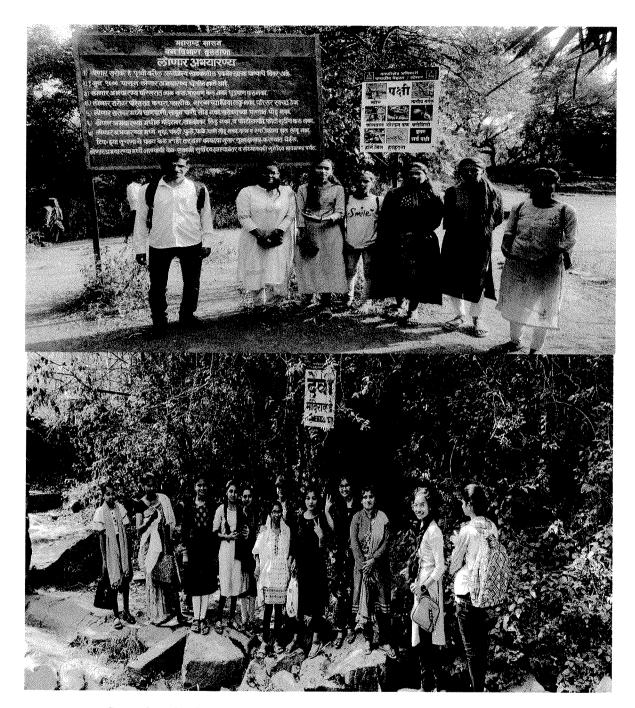

A series of small hills surround the basin, which has an oval shape, almost round, with a circumference at top of about 8 km (five miles). The sides of the basin rise abruptly at an angle of about 75°. At the base of the sides, the lake has a circumference of about 4.8 km (three miles). The slopes are covered with tree-savannah, housing teak (Tectona grandis), Wrightia tinctoria, Butea monosperma, and Helicteres isora, and with shrub-savannah housing Acacia nilotica and Ziziphus mauritiana. Along the lake shore, non-native Prosopis juliflora is spreading. Millet, maize, banana, and papaya are the main cultivated crops around the Lonar Lake.

LONAR LAKE

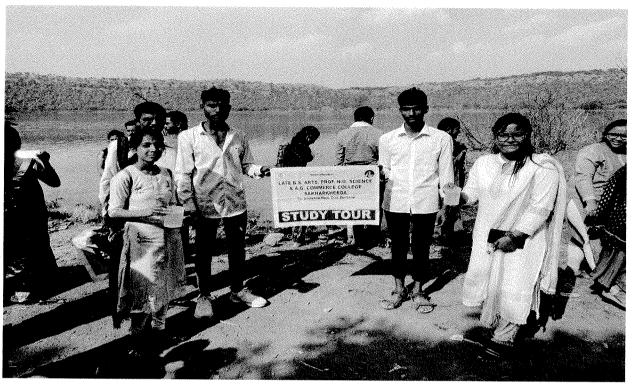

The journey for the field visit of Lonar Lake was begun from the college campus at 9.00 am. 46 student which includes 35 girls and 11 students with 05 staff member were departed in private bus. The distance of Lonar lake from college campus was about 45 km, it takes about two hours to reach their. After entering to the area of Lonar Lake lunch break was taken for half hour (No plastic and food material was carried to the Lake area). Then the journey was started from the fresh water resource to collect the plant specimens and sample water. Plant specimens of Tectona nilotica, Ziziphus mauritiana and Prosopis juliflora were collected from the surrounding area.

Snapshot during the collection of Plant specimens at Lonar Lake

The water sample collected from the lake was brought to the laboratory for a systematic reduction of a known or unknown entity (a solute, organism, etc.) by serial dilution method.

Collection of Water sample from Lonar Lake

Outcomes of the Excursion:

The excursion, thus arranged, proved to be extremely helpful to the students in understanding the ecosystem around and within the Lonar Lake. This helps the students not only in identifying the various plant species but also develops an understanding about the favorable and non favorable environmental conditions. It also helps the students to improve the practical knowledge for flora around the saline lake. The excursion would certainly help the students to develop research interest in the field of plant biology, microbiology and other allied fields.

Report On Soil Analysis in the Nearby Region of Adopted Villages

Session: 2023-2024

Preamble:

Department of Chemistry, Late B.S. Arts, Prof. N.G. Science and A.G. Commerce college Sakharkherda organized the Project work for B.Sc.II Year students on the topic "Soil Analysis in the Nearby region of adopted village" Ten students were selected for the project work. Analysis of soil was carried out from two different villages in the nearby region of Sakharkherda during 11 to 13 January 2024. For soil analysis students choose Sawadad and Mohadi village.

Introduction:

Soil consists of a solid phase of minerals and organic matter (the soil matrix), as well as a porous phase that holds gases (the soil atmosphere) and water (the soil solution). Accordingly, soil is a three-state system of solids, liquids, and gases. Soil is a product of several factors: the influence of climate, relief (elevation, orientation, and slope of terrain), organisms, and the soil's parent materials (original minerals) interacting over time Soil tests allow you to understand soil fertility in your fields. The accuracy of a soil test starts during the sampling process. Samples must be taken at a consistent depth and in a random nature. The objective was to collect multiple small samples representative of the field majority. The characteristics of soil within the nearby region are calculated by standard method. In this project work soil samples were collected from nearby region of sakharkherda village.

Methodology:

Random sampling is performed on uniform fields in this soil sampling technique. a global positioning system is used to keep a record of soil nutrient data the procedure can be used repeatedly for years over the same random points that are geo referenced with GPS random sampling is a sampling method that allows for the randomization of sample selection i. e, each sample has the same profitability as other samples to be selected to serve as a representation of an entire population/ it is considered as one of the most popular and simple data collection technique Analysis of soil taken many factors into consideration pH of all soil samples should be in the acidic range. There is an significant difference of bulk density values between sample S1 and sample S2. Sample S1 contain higher bulk density as compare to sample S1. While S1 is having highest specific gravity. Whereas sample S1 content higher Moisture content as compare to sample S2. Water holding capacity of sample S1 is greater than sample S2.

Conclusion:

The test report for the above analytical test is attached herewith. According to the study findings, as a result of agricultural production in the cultivated land, there was a decrease in the plant nutrients and physical decomposition depending upon low level of organic compound in these lands, physical structures of land should be applied by organic fertilizers and they must be enriched in plant nutrients the cultivation of land should be in minimum depth tillage should be managed to avoid formation of flow pan increasing density.

"Soil Analysis in the Nearby region of adopted village."

Preamble:

Soil consists of a solid phase of minerals and organic matter (the soil matrix), as well as a porous phase that holds gases (the soil atmosphere) and water (the soil solution). Accordingly, soil is a three-state system of solids, liquids, and gases. Soil is a product of several factors: the influence of climate, relief (elevation, orientation, and slope of terrain), organisms, and the soil's parent materials (original minerals) interacting over time. It continually undergoes development by way of numerous physical, chemical and biological processes, which include weathering with associated erosion given its complexity and strong internal connectedness, soil ecologists regard soil as an ecosystem.

Objectives of soil sample

- > Evaluation of fertility status of soil
- Estimation of the available nutrients status of soil
- Evaluation of the suitability of soil for laying garden
- > Determination of acidity, salinity and alkalinity problems and
- Recommendation of the required amount of fertilizers, lime or gypsum based on soil test value.

Methodology:

1) In this project work soil samples were collected from nearby region of sakharkherda village. Random sampling is performed on uniform fields in this soil sampling technique. a global positioning system is used to keep a record of soil nutrient data the procedure can be used repeatedly for years over the same random points that are geo referenced with GPS random sampling is a sampling method that allows for the randomization of sample selection i. e, each sample has the same profitability as other samples to be selected to serve as a representation of an entire population/ it is considered as one of the most popular and simple data collection technique.

2) Bulk Density

Requirements- Oven, measuring cylinder and chemical balance.

Method- Dry the soil sample in oven at 105 0 C until a constant weight is attained, transfer a little dried soil to a measuring cylinder and note the volume. Record the weight of this volume of soil on a balance.

Sample No.	Weight of soil (gm)	Volume of soil (ml)	Bulk density(gm/cm3)
S1	44.67	40	1.11
S2	22.82	20	1.14

Calculation

Bulk density(Sample S1) (gm/cm3) = Weight of soil (gm)/Volume of soil (cm3)

Bulk density(Sample S1) (gm/cm3) = $\frac{1.11}{4}$ $\frac{4m}{cm^3}$

Bulk density(Sample S2) (gm/cm3) = Weight of soil (gm)/Volume of soil (cm3)

Specific gravity(gm)	2.55gm	2.51 Jm
Moisture content(%)	4.32%	2.4 %
Water holding capacity(%)	64%	52 %

Result and discussion

The characteristics of soil within the nearby region are calculated by standard methods as explained in the experimental procedure, before the analysis of soil taken many factors into consideration pH of all soil samples should be in the Acidic range There is an significant difference of bulk density values between sample S1 and Sample S2. Sample S2 content higher Bulk density as compare to sample S1. while S1 is having highest specific gravity. Whereas sample S1 content higher Moisture content as compare to sample S2. Water holding capacity of sample S1 is greater than sample S2.

Conclusion

According to the study the study findings ,as the result of agricultural production in the cultivated land ,there was a decrease in plant nutrients and physical decomposition .depending upon low level of organic compound in these lands ,the physical structures of land should be applied by organic fertilizers and they must be enriched in plant nutrients the cultivation of land should be in minimum depth tillage should be managed to avoid formation of flow pan increasing density .

"Soil Analysis in the Nearby region of adopted village."

Preamble:

Soil consists of a solid phase of minerals and organic matter (the soil matrix), as well as a porous phase that holds gases (the soil atmosphere) and water (the soil solution). Accordingly, soil is a three-state system of solids, liquids, and gases. Soil is a product of several factors: the influence of climate, relief (elevation, orientation, and slope of terrain), organisms, and the soil's parent materials (original minerals) interacting over time. It continually undergoes development by way of numerous physical, chemical and biological processes, which include weathering with associated erosion given its complexity and strong internal connectedness, soil ecologists regard soil as an ecosystem.

Objectives of soil sample

- > Evaluation of fertility status of soil
- > Estimation of the available nutrients status of soil
- Evaluation of the suitability of soil for laying garden
- > Determination of acidity, salinity and alkalinity problems and
- Recommendation of the required amount of fertilizers, lime or gypsum based on soil test value.

Methodology:

1) In this project work soil samples were collected from nearby region of sakharkherda village. 	survey results revealed that the majority of villagers reported that poverty and illiteracy were the most pressing social problems in their village. Other issues highlighted by the survey included health issues lack of development and lack of access to basic amenities. The survey results indicate that poverty and illiteracy are the most serious social problems faced by the villagers. Moreover, health issues, lack of development, and lack of access to basic amenities are also significant issues in the village. This indicates that the village is in need of interventions from the government and other organizations to improve the lives of the villagers. This report has examined the results of a survey conducted by college students at their village. The results indicate that poverty and illiteracy are the most serious social problems faced by the villagers.

Department of NSS Voter Awareness Report

The NSS unit has taken Voter Awareness Program to strengthen the democracy. Dr.R.P.Kitke has addressed students about registration for voter ID. He promoted it by expressing that awareness of villagers for voting is very essential for progress of the individual and the nation. It is the basic right of every citizen of India and one must use it consciously and wisely. However, rampant corruption is seen in the local bodies due to ignorance of common people and the lack of honest and effective elected representatives to lead the development work. The elections are dominated by money and muscle power. So at last he added that for conducting fair voting and election programs, all the voters must be made aware.
